CROCKETT STIRRED BY CRIME

Officers on Trail Find no Track Of Fugitive at Early Hour Today

Special to the Record-Herald
VALONA, Aug. 18.—Crazed to the point of insanity by jealousy, Joe McCarran, a Mexican laborer, shot and killed his wife in a quarrel at her boarding house here just before midnight last night.

McCarran had run afoul of the law and had been in jail for some time previous to the killing. When he was released about a month ago his wife refused to allow him to share her boarding house, having started up business of her own, saying that her husband did not contribute to her support.

Turned down by his spouse, McCarran left the neighborhood and nothing is known of his ramblings until last night. Returning here, he is said to have become enraged over his wife's real or alleged attentions to another man.

Fired In Anger
They quarreled, and the angered husband fired two shots into his wife's head, according to meager reports available at the office of Constable James Fox.

Officers Summoned
Sheriff R. R. Veale and other officers were summoned from Martinez and other points, but no trace of the missing McCarran had been found up to 1 o'clock this morning.

Came From Kennett
The McCarrans came here recently from Kennett, where McCarran worked in the smelter of the American Smelting and Refining company. The impending closing of that smelter, with the consequent throwing out of employment of hundreds of men, and the depopulation of a town of 1200 was the cause of the migration of the couple to the bay region in search of employment.

NATIONAL RUIN

Russia furnishes the most outstanding example of all history in national ruin, says George B. Lockwood in the July National Republic. Other nations have passed through upheavals somewhat similar, but have withstood the shock. Russia is wrecked. Most of her people of intelligence and education, whose better directed energies might have led Russia to security and happiness, are dead or in exile. A nation may grow new crops and develop new resources, but the stamping out of a nation's brains is an irreparable injury.

In this period when patriotism is so much decried, the spirit of nationalism so often attacked, the traditions of our republic so often flouted, it is well to remember the cause of the Russian catchism. It came about through lack of patriotism; through absence of a true national spirit. It was a lack of genuine patriotism which caused the rulers of that nation of the pre-revolutionary period to lose step with the rest of the world in lifting up the level of life for the masses. Russia had resources almost comparable to those of the United States, but no national spirit spurred the governing classes of Russia to the development. Industrialism was feared as a menace to an autocracy which refused to be liberalized, and had its natural reaction in unreasoning, revolutionary radicalism.

There was no real love of Russia as a land and as a people among those in whose hands the destiny of this great empire seemed to rest. Russians of the ruling class had no pride in their country, no love even for their language. The sentiment grew up even among those who formed the Russian court that anything foreign was preferable to that which was Russian. Children of the upper classes must speak French, write English, now German. Affection of these languages, eliminated interest in that which was Russian. Paris became the real capital of the pleasure-loving Russian aristocracy. There was no national feeling; no national language expressed the thought of the people.

And so what was once called the great bear has become no more than a howling hyena. Her masters today profess no special love for Russia; theirs are dreams of communist internationalism; or world-wide dominion. Within the vast domain of Russia, bulking across two continents, rich in resources sufficient to develop a great, powerful and independent nation are the materials out of which a great empire, a great republic, might be built. But as in the days of the old czars, so in the days of the new, there is no love of country—that spirit which has made every great nation great, and which only can build a country worthy of the love and loyalty of its people.

In this country today we have propagandists who seek to break down our national spirit, who sneer at love of country, who decry patriotism, and who would make Americans ashamed of loyalty to their republic and its flag. They would lead us over the pathway which Russia has trod to ruin. When Americans, who have so much reason to love their country, cherish its ideals and uphold its principles, succumb to the preposterous propaganda of a spurious internationalism, when they develop a national inferiority complex like that of our noisy apostles of Europeanism, they will have started downward on the road which leads to destruction.

It is reassuring to note that in every American city of any size one may find organized societies for the prevention of cruelty to animals. The men and women who are actively sponsoring and supporting such societies are accomplishing a noble and unselfish work and are succeeding in minimizing to a great degree the plan and suffering of animals.—Vallejo Chronicle.

The high prices are the bugbear that prevent a multitude of young couples from marrying. Yet if two young folks are really in love, half of the things for which people spend money become unnecessary. Love in a cottage is an ideal that will never grow old, for those find the right mate.—Woodland Mail.

When it is all sifted down we will probably find that those Chinese riots were caused by some white man who tried to introduce chop suey into the country.

An office is a place where a man tries to make a living by working after he has finished entertaining those who don't.

Clubwomen urge teaching citizenship in the home, but the trouble about that is finding anybody at home to each.

The Shenandoah and the Los Angeles are Uncle Sam's two biggest gas bags, but they will never get into politics.

It proved to be nothing more serious than influenza, but it was at first thought Mr. D'Annunzio was coming down with another poem.

We see no trouble in future for our agricultural interests. All the farms will soon be golf links.

Only Beautiful Necks Need Be Seen
In This Day of Many and Varied
Scarfs.

THE lines of a woman's neck very frequently betray her age more than anything else about her. Too great angularity is also often pleasantly apparent only in the contour of the neck. It is often rather reckless for a woman to go always about bare necked. While the present vogue for scarfs remains there really is no excuse for any woman to display an unattractive or age-betraying neckline. Even with evening dress it is possible to float airy tulle about one's neck so that its outlines are not too vividly disclosed. Almost any scarf may be worn close about the neck and there is an which may be worn comfortably at mountain resorts and will undoubtedly take a prominent place in autumn sport clothes everywhere. Usually the most trying part of the long, scrawny neck is at the back. This spot can be the most charming, or the least, in a woman's whole makeup. You can remedy this trouble in almost any daytime frock by adding to it a crisp organdie collar and opens to a V or square line in front. Many of the smart dress-makers are adding these little detachable organdie collars to many of their frocks this summer by request of fastidious customers who find they add becomingness as well as freshness to the appearance.

WISE AND OTHERWISE

By MARY MARSHALL

FEARS OF THE OVERWEIGHT

IT was observed a while ago that the high price in bread in Paris had little effect on women who follow the fashion, because fashionable French women have given up bread in their eagerness to retain slender bodies. And this system of giving up just bread or cutting oneself down to two slices of bread a day, really does help unless one is really a lot overweight.

Some one asked a diet specialist the other day whether the vogue for slenderness was keeping women from drinking as much milk as they should.

"If it is," he said, "it is unreasonable so. While milk will help an undernourished person to come back to a normal weight, there is nothing in milk itself that will produce fat more than any other sort of food, unless of course it is taken in addition to the other food and not instead of it. Of course, cream is fattening. That is different."

The fact is that a woman who wishes to keep her weight down would do well to make one meal a day consist entirely of milk—a pint of it if she liked—because she could in that way perfectly satisfy her appetite without taking any starch whatever and only a slight amount of fat and sugar. When a man has to lose extra weight he very often makes it his wife's affair. It is she who has to worry over the diet and eliminate all taboo articles from the bill of fare. While the man has only to sit down and eat what he finds set before him. Recently a young wife worked hard over the reducing dietary given her husband by the doctor. She was so afraid that her husband would find it tiresome that she spent hours in the kitchen making everything as good as possible. At the end of two weeks her husband and she were both weighed. Her husband had gained four pounds and she had lost six. And that's the way of it. There is danger in making the reducing diet too attractive.

THE LIMITED MAIL

by ELMER EVANCE

Novel by William Basil Courtney

"THE LIMITED MAIL" with Monte Blue, is a picturization of this story by Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.

SYNOPSIS

Bob Wilson, a young college graduate who suddenly turned tramp, has procured a job as freeman on the railroad and is making his home in Crater City. He is a source of mystery and speculation to the whole town. Going to the station lunch room for breakfast one morning he is surprised to find a new waitress there and finds himself strangely attracted by this "lustrous picture of blanchet ivory and old gold."

"I want you to know I'm sorry that I annoyed you," said Bob hastily, in a penitent and intense voice. She placed his coffee, and turned to go away.

"Er-r, Miss—Miss Dale, please don't be angry," he begged miserably. She hesitated, resting the rim of her tray on a far corner of the table, and looked at him steadily. "My rudeness came from—my surprise at seeing anyone so nice as you in this place, after all these years."

"You are not a native, then?" she asked in a forgiving, tentatively interested way, after a brief scrutiny. Bob shook his head negatively and started to put sugar cubes in his coffee. He felt on terms of good fellowship with the whole wide world, the June scents of which waited through the open windows a lulling message of awakened, sun-nourished things. The distilling forces of an arid nature were at work with rolled-up sleeves on the second growth enthusiasms in Bob's soul.

"That's what I said, cutie," Miss Trisk assured her.

"I hope that after you've seen more of me here you won't mind if I ask you—if I want you to—if I ask you to be friends," he ventured, continuing to put sugar cubes into his coffee.

"Is that a threat or a promise?" she laughed, genuinely amused by his cautious approach.

Bob laughed, too. They had a second laugh then, together. Miss Trisk, who had not missed a trick, did not laugh; nor did Bramley. The one looked jealous; the other, resigned. Their opportunity for hilarity came within a minute, though, when a wild-eyed call boy dashed into the room, came to a disgusted and panting stop when he spotted Bob and the waitress, who were lost to all superficial influences, then advanced toward them and spoke sarcastically.

"Wilson, I've searched all over for you. Morran's going to send your train out with a sub if you ain't there in half a shake. He's down in the yard chewin' an oil can now, and six-inch sparks is comin' outen his eyes. I wouldn't want to be in your shoes. Sign here, please!"

Bob gasped in panic as he saw the time. Twenty minutes to eight! Ten minutes past the scheduled start of his run. He signed the call book, jumped up, smiled at Caroline and hurried away. The memory of the look of concern on her face—as though she was fearful that, somehow, it was all her fault and that he would get into trouble on account of her—stopped him at the door. He went back, shook hands with her, then departed—all in a laughing, excited, happy rush that even the expectation of being struck by Bolts' verbal lightning could not despoil. Luckily, his day's job was on a local freight, and while a delay was serious enough it was not vital or unforgivable.

In the whirlwind of his departing wake Caroline Dale stood looking with a guilty yet happy smile at the table he had vacated and the breakfast he had left untouched but for the single bite of waffles that had been, well—the cause of it all! A soggy, dank pyramid of sugar, the entire contents of the sugar crock which Bob had absent-mindedly transferred piece by piece into his coffee cup, was a sweet monument to the gay havoc she had wrought upon his mental processes.

"Gee, kid, you're a fast worker!" complimented Miss Trisk, backhandedly, a little later. "You're the first one who ever vamped Bob Wilson into looking as though he knew that such things as girls existed in this here mortal plane."

"Vamped him, why what do you mean?" said Caroline, aggrieved. "That's your line, huh—sweet baby innocence—budding daughter asking mama 'how do cats get kittens' stuff. And yet, I've known others to pull that pose on him and never get past his jumper buckles."

Caroline swam deftly aside from the current of Miss Trisk's superannuated sex lore. "Is that his name—Bob Wilson?"

"Righto, cutie—but the rest of the family statistics I can't give you," she volunteered cattily. "He's been the Elmer Glyn mystery of this burg so long, we ain't hoping no more to solve it."

Now Caroline was young, remarkably pretty, and intelligent—Life's rarest triangle—inevitably and industriously romantic. All in all, here was a nature vibrantly responsive to the lit and the warm urgings of the petal-sweetened spring air; and she was vividly aware that the young man had somehow deposited with her a glowing consciousness of his own freshly youthful, clean-cut good looks even in the undapper habiliments of his daily toil. He was the one bright tracing in the drab pattern of her first impressions of this town and its sweaty, swearing, careless bustle. Miss Trisk's alluring hints about Bob constituted a bracing challenge to Caroline's spirit, and she met it eagerly, dissembling with the sex craft of a thousand centuries, cloaking her real interest under a coy air of casualness so well done that it even fooled herself—but not Miss Trisk.

"A real, honest-to-goodness mystery? How interesting!"

"Yeah, ain't it?" drily.

"Surely he has some relatives that you know of—someone he writes to or visits?"

"Not so's you could notice it. But you can't never tell about them tramps—"

"Tramp!" in horror.

"That's what I said, cutie," Miss Trisk assured her, with comfortable satisfaction in her own swordsmanship. "He was a plain, ordinary bum when he first came to this town."

The thin cashier paused to enjoy her sport, and Caroline inwardly writhed while she fought to check an outward show of too obvious disappointment. He had been a tramp! Picturesque and mystifying, but rather rough. She could feel a racing of hot blood to her cheeks; for the rest, however, she was able to meet Miss Trisk's narrowed eyes on a cool level.

"When I think he deserves all the credit in the world for staying and living down his past!" she maintained bravely.

Admiration for the girl's steadfastness in her interest softened Miss Trisk's mood; admiration, and a keen sense of the communal debt to Bob Wilson.

"He saved the Limited Mail one night, and after that it wasn't no trick for him to get a job around here for he stood aces high with the trainmen, and the homefolks too, because, believe me, there'd have been crepe on many a door only for him. Gee, they'd have given him the keys to the city," she finished, with an attempt at humor to cover a panicky realization that it was her own emotions that were in full cry now, "only it wasn't locked, and there ain't no key for it anyhow."

Caroline felt unaccountably proud of this man she had met but once, and then in a business way. Meanwhile, Miss Trisk's mood had undergone a complete change. Perhaps it was the fragrant outdoor breeze that had touched her thin cheeks, too; but to her it carried, instead of pubescent impulses, only reminiscent echoes coming hollowly back through dim years to a sterile present and future.

Up to this time neither Senator Burton K. Wheeler nor his eminent counsel, Senator Walsh has blamed those Montana earthquake shocks on the department of justice.

Natural Color Photography Wins Praise in "Ten Commandments"

"We used what is known as the Technicolor process to film the Egyptian scenes. In them, one sees the children of Israel crossing the desert. The bright barbaric colors of the thousands of people and their animals against the softer grey sands has a remarkable effect on the observer."

"Contrary to earlier developments in the field of color photography these scenes do not flicker or cause eye-strain, neither do the colors run together. It is as clear as the ordinary film, and has that added novelty of color which takes it out of the stereotyped type of spectacles."

"Engineers and photographers of the Technicolor Company aided us in taking these scenes of 'The Ten Commandments.'"

"The only apparent difference in a color-equipped camera is that two films pass behind the lens simultaneously, while in the ordinary camera but one film is used. Prisms separate the reds and greens of the scene being taken. Thus on one film are recorded the red tints and on the other the green.

"When they are combined at the laboratory a red filter eliminates everything from the green film except the green, and a green filter eliminates from the red film all but the red. The two films are then cemented together in such a way that the finished print shows the blue, yellow, orange, gold and green colors, as well as shades of green and red."

"The natural effect would be to make the story and study the colors. But to such a height has the dramatic intensity been maintained, that the color just adds to what already is a powerful strong picture."

Romance Movie Has Unique Plot

A hero and a heroine who hate themselves because they are not beautiful!

These are the unique characterizations that handsome Richard Barthelmess and beautiful May McAvoy are giving today on the screen at the Richmond Theatre, where "The Enchanted Cottage," Barthelmess' latest First National starring vehicle, is showing.

Both Barthelmess and his leading lady appear in striking makeup. The star is a discouraged wreck of the world war. Miss McAvoy is a poor little girl, very pitifully homely and unhappy.

But a charming romance develops between the two and they see a beauty in themselves that makes for an ending that is one of the most delightful unfolded on the screen.

John S. Robertson who made "Sentimental Tommy," directed "The Enchanted Cottage."

Other features on the same program include "Bright Lights," a Bobby Vernon comedy; "Topics of the Day"; "Aesop's Fables."

INDUSTRIAL AND WAR TIME OIL SUPPLY SECURE

Exhaustive Investigation Is Conducted Into Petroleum Reserve of the Future

AMERICAN PETROLEUM INSTITUTE ISSUES REPORT SHOWING OIL COMPANIES HAVE NOT NEARED THE LIMIT OF SUPPLY

Reassuring calamity howlers that there is no immediate danger of a shortage of gasoline or crude oil in the United States due to the heavy consumption, and also pointing to ways of economy designed to make the existing supply go further, an article entitled "The Future Supply of Oil" in the August issue of The Standard Oil Bulletin will contain a report on the oil resources of this nation. The authority for the optimistic outlook taken in the article, which will be ready for distribution within the next few days, is no less than that of the special committee directed by the American Petroleum Institute to investigate the future supply and demand for petroleum.

Article Is Here Reproduced In Full.

Anyone who is concerned about the future security of the country, in peace or war, so far as the supply of petroleum products is concerned, will find material re-assurance in a report which has just been published by a committee of eleven members of the Board of Directors of the American Petroleum Institute. The report indicates that there is no cause for alarm.

Late in 1924 President Coolidge appointed the Federal Oil Conservation Board, consisting of four members of his Cabinet, to make a study of the future supply of petroleum in the United States. In consequence of the President's action, The Board of Directors of the American Petroleum Institute appointed a committee to make report on the future supply of oil and demand for petroleum. The committee, enlisting the co-operation of experts in oil and of numerous authorities outside the industry, conducted an investigation which has taken six months to complete. The report is probably the most thorough study of the oil industry that has ever been made.

Quantity of Oil Supply Not Known.

Predictions of failure of the American supply of oil have been made almost from the beginning of the oil industry. All have proved fallacious. When the production of oil fields has dropped off, the oil industry has found new fields.

Oil is a hidden resource. Without actual drilling there is no way of telling where it lies nor how much of it there is. It must be sought and discovered. There are, however, sound facts on which to base an estimate of how much oil existing fields will yield through present methods of pumping and flowing. The report fixes the figure at five billion, three hundred million barrels. And the estimate is made that after present fields cease to produce there will remain in the ground, unrecoverable by pumping or flowing, twenty-six billion barrels of oil, a large portion of which may be recovered through new, but known, methods, such as flooding with water the use of air or gas pressure to force the oil, or mining.

Much Territory Yet Unexplored.

Altogether this comprises a considerable quantity of oil "in sight." But the major reserves of the nation lie in an acre of more than a billion unexplored acres of land in the United States which are geologically favorable to the presence of oil. Here new fields are to be discovered. Then there are imports, particularly from South America, which will relieve the strain on the American reserves.

And when, if ever, the supply of petroleum fails, the nation has huge deposits of oil shale, coal and lignites, from all of which liquid fuel and lubricants can be obtained in such vast quantities as to present an aspect of unlimited supply, which will be drawn upon as price of products justifies development.

New Developments To Increase Yield.

The report draws particular attention to two impending developments of very great importance. One is the extension within the industry of "cracking" crude oil, a process which increases the yield of the all-important gasoline. The other is a change in motor construction which, roughly speaking, will double the mileage of the automobile per gallon of gasoline. Herein is true conservation. Altogether, the findings of the committee are reassuring. There may be passing periods of shortage of petroleum, but there is no danger in the situation. The committee's conclusions follow:

Committee Says No Danger of Shortage.

1. There is no imminent danger of the exhaustion of the petroleum reserves of the United States.
2. It is reasonable to assume that a sufficient supply of oil will be available for national defense and for essential uses in the United States beyond the time when science will limit the demand by developing more efficient use of, or substitutes for, oil, or will displace its use as a source of power by harnessing a natural energy.
3. Current supply and demand cannot stay in balance, since the amount of both supply and demand are constantly changing. Generally, current supply will exceed or be less than current demand, creating surplus or shortage; either condition will be reflected in price, but price will in time correct either condition.

4. Petroleum recoverable by present methods of flowing and pumping from existing wells and acreage thus proven consists of five billion, three hundred million (5,300,000,000) barrels of crude oil.

To Get Remaining Oil From Fields.

5. It is estimated that after pumping and flowing there will remain in the area now producing and proved twenty-six billion (26,000,000,000) barrels of crude oil, a considerable portion of which can be recovered by improved and known processes such as flooding with water, the introduction of air and gas pressure and mining, when price justifies.

6. Improved methods of deep drilling below oil sands now producing will disclose in many areas deposits not hitherto available, which will be tantamount to the discovery of new fields. Improved methods of producing have been perfected which will make possible recovery of oil from these lower levels. The limit of deep drilling has not been reached.

7. The major oil reserves of the United States lie in some one billion, one hundred million (1,100,000,000) acres of lands underlain by sedimentary rocks, and not fully explored, in which geology indicates oil is possible. With extended search new supplies will be found therein.

8. The Nation has an additional reserve in the vast deposits of oil shale, coal and lignites, from all of which liquid fuel and lubricants may be extracted if and when cost of recovery is justified by the price of these products. These deposits are so huge that they promise, under conservative estimates, and almost unlimited supply.

9. While this report is confined to the petroleum supply and demand within continental United States the importance of imports cannot be ignored. Countries to the south are known to have large petroleum resources, for the output of which the United States is a natural market and the supply therefrom must inevitably have its influence on the consumption of American reserves.

10. The availability of future petroleum supplies from the vast areas of land mentioned above depends upon adequate incentives to the exploration which in the past has given the Nation a sufficient supply of petroleum in peace and in war, throughout the history of the oil industry, from its inception in 1859.

Committee Makes List of Recommendations.

There must be:

- (a) Security in the ownership of oil lands and of the right to lease.

(b) Conditions of exploration and development by owners or lessees permitting exercise of initiative, liberty of action, the play of competition and the free operation of the law of Supply and Demand.

(c) Prices that will provide a return to producers, refiners, and distributors commensurate to the risks involved and the capital invested.

11. Supply of petroleum will be made to go much further through more efficient utilization. Automobile experts state that the mileage of the motor car per gallon of gasoline may be doubled through structural mechanical changes, when price justifies such change. Improved mechanics will also result in smaller consumption of lubricants.

12. Through improved methods, principally the process known as "cracking," the refining branch of the industry has already increased the yield of gasoline, now the major product of petroleum. Through further improvements and extensions the supply of gasoline will be augmented still further by the "cracking" of fuel oil. In consequence the supply of fuel oil will be correspondingly diminished, thus eventually removing fuel oil from competition with coal.

Elimination of Waste Will Conserve Supply.

13. Waste in the production, transportation, refining and distribution of petroleum and its products is negligible.

Signed:

CROWDS INSPECT SAN PABLO DAIRY ASKS VACATION OF THOROFARES

Barbecue is Prime Attraction At Celebration at Opening Of New Plant

Two thousand interested people went to the San Pablo Milk Producers' plant at San Pablo Sunday to inspect the new enterprise. The day was started off with a big barbecue. The prime beef was cooked by the Weber brothers, butchers of San Pablo, and Coster, the tire man, of Richmond.

The address of the day was given by George W. Prising of San Francisco. He complimented the Producers on their new, and evidently successful undertaking.

During the afternoon a complete inspection of the dairy was made. J. L. Avevedo, J. M. Lewis and A. M. Lewis, owners of the concern, showed the people all steps in the production of the milk supply from the milking of the cows to the bottling of the milk.

Avevedo declared that great success has already been met by the company. A good number of Richmond residents are purchasing their milk from the San Pablo producers, and all seem to be well satisfied.

New Members Go Into Lodge Of Odd Fellows

Five new members were initiated at the meeting of Eclipse Lodge, No. 403, Independent Order of Odd Fellows, in Richmond hall last night. One other member was accepted by transfer.

Water Container Important Item on Motor Camping Trip

A good water container is a very important item and should be included in the list of camping equipment. It is always better to carry an ample supply of good, sweet water in the car than to run the risk of using water from a roadside stream or some other indefinite source.

Of course, the locality has a great deal to do with the water supply. Along the main traveled boulevards only a small quantity need be carried, but on the byways, mountain roads or desert trails, a large container of water should be carried as a measure of precaution.

One carrier, and perhaps one of the best for conveying water, is the desert bag. For years it has been the standby with the prospector on his desert trips, and today it still ranks high in popularity among auto campers. This bag is so constructed that the water stays at its original temperature for many hours after it has been filled. The steady evaporation which is taking place through the mesh of the canvas forms a natural refrigerator. This bag should be carried not fastened to the side of the car, but suspended from the top bow or some other place so that it will not touch anything else. If carried in this manner and properly handled it will not drip or leak.

The semi-round canteen covered with heavy blanket material also comes in for its share of popularity. The bottom of this container is flat so that it conforms with the running board.

The swingspout unit, consisting of three canteens, one for gasoline, oil and water, respectively, may save motor trouble or a long walk for gas and water. This outfit, too, fastens to the running board.

Have the water bucket made of canvas, the folding type with the side braces and screened spout. This comes in very handy for filling the radiator and can be used around the camp for a good advantage for carrying water.

The folding wash basin, made of canvas, is also in line with these folding water containers. Like the bucket, it lays flat and can be carried under the seat cushion of the car when not in use.

The woman who entertains well—

THERE'S something indescribably fine about the woman who entertains well. From the cheery appearance of her home to the service she so deftly affords — everything is so natural yet—so charmingly different.

Such splendid hostesses, once very rare and belonging only to the idle classes, are now to be found everywhere. They grace homes in every walk of life—making them happier though the many friends they attract.

Advertisements keep these women ahead of the commonplace. Advertisements tell of the newest and most delightful things. Advertisements announce new customs and practices. They tell what the world approves as correct.

The woman who entertains well must read the advertisements. Not only to keep pace with progress — but to learn how to do so on a limited purse. For advertisements are more than harbingers of style—they are announcements of economies that may be practiced safely.

Read the advertisements — to know what is new, what is correct—and what is economical

HOOPER, COLLINS AND SCHALK, MAINSTAYS OF WHITE—
HAVE TOTAL OF 50 YEARS SERVICE IN BIG LEAGUES

Here is a recent photograph of Harry Hooper, Eddie Collins and Ray Schalk, three prime factors in keeping the Chicago White Sox in third place. In his first year as Manager Collins raised the club from last place to a position just behind the leaders. Hooper, a Californian by birth, is completing his seventh year in fast company; Collins, a native of New York state, has been wearing big league uniforms for twenty years, and Schalk, who hails from Illinois, is spending his fourteenth year with the big show.

PULLMANS TAKE LEAGUE TROPHY

Without even getting out of their "evening dress" the Pullman ball club won the championship of the Oakland Industrial league.

The deciding game was to have been played in Oakland Sunday with the Pacific Manifold and Bookbinding company. However, the Oakland outfit probably realized the uselessness of combating Huston's terriers, so didn't put in an appearance. This made the second win of the scheduled three game series.

The Spalding Trophy was the reward of the pennant winners.

A gold fob will go to each player. A banquet will also be given in the near future.

Never this season have the Pullmans lost a game in this league, and only played a few ties.

The members of the champion Pullmans are:

Hansen, Daley, Burke, Lawson, Fairbanks, Jacobsen, Sherrard, McElroy, Austin, Kamb, Lund, McCarron, Cornell and Lombardi.

O'Doul Slumps But Maintains Batting Lead

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 17.—Frank O'Doul, slugging outfielder of the Salt Lake Bees, continues to lead the Pacific Coast league in the batting column, although the series with the Seals last week cost him eight points. O'Doul's averages, including games of Saturday, is .413, unofficial figures show.

Frank Brazill of Seattle still holds second honors with .405 and Paul Waner of the San Francisco Seals is third with an average of .398.

Muller is setting the pace for Oakland with .359. Rohwer is high among the Beaver squad with a .356 percentage. Twombly, batting .339, leads the Angel batsmen; M. Shea leads the Senators with .322 and Griffin the Vernon Tigers with .299.

Tony Lazerre of the Bees has a safe lead in the home run department with a total of 28 circuit clouts. His nearest rival is Frank Brazill, Seattle, with 27. Rohwer is next with 26.

Base stealing homers also go to Lazerre, the Bee shortstop, having pilfered 33 bases. Hunnefeld of Portland trails Lazerre with 31 and Lane of Seattle is next with 28.

MICKEY WALKER TO FIGHT FRIEDMAN

CHICAGO, Aug. 17.—Mickey Walker, world's welterweight champion boxer, will fight Sailor Friedman at East Chicago, Monday, August 24, in a ten-round match.

CROWDS JEER HELEN WILLS FOR LATENESS

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—As a result of the international tennis series, concluded during the week-end, a team of English women soon will sail for home with the Wightman cup and a distorted impression of American sportsmanship, ethics, deportment and, in fact, common courtesy.

They will go back to England and tell the neighbors they enjoyed the trip so much, particularly the quaint mannerisms of the natives, who hoot their champion and revile linesmen, who render decisions incompatible with the public taste. They could do no less after the reprehensible demonstration staged during the matches.

HELEN LATE

Miss Helen Wills, a demure, self-contained, altogether appealing young girl, and every inch a champion, was jeered when she failed to appear on time for her doubles match.

There was more to come and it was considerably worse. Almost every alternate decision rendered by a linesman was shouted down in disorderly protest, which was all the more unbecomingly because most of it was directed at plays rendered for the English.

It would seem that mere politeness would demand silence at such a time, but this crowd had all the courtesy of a bill collector.

As a matter of fact, it did everything but throw pop bottles.

It was supposed to be a lawn tennis match, where decorum is king. But decorum ran for the end book to the everlasting embarrassment of American sportsmanship.

JUST HOODLUMS

"Just a crowd of hoodlums," was the explanation of one tennis official. But it does not suffice. It was not a crowd of hoodlums unless that variety of human race has taken to wearing summer furs, smart frocks, flannels, knickers and a displeased countenance.

It seemed like the usual tennis crowd in dress, but vocally and mentally it was all wet. More than that, it was absolutely satiated.

GOLDEN BEAR HAS ARRIVED

BERKELEY, Aug. 17.—The Golden Bear pulled out of his summer den and returned to Berkeley today for the opening of the fall semester at the University of California and the debut of the 1923 football season which is still a few weeks ahead.

It has been whispered and suggested in various quarters that California would be good on the gridiron this year.

They came not only in quality but quantity. From the present outlook there will be nearly three men competing for every position on the squad and with at least 10 aspirants for the wings.

The Bears were lead by their flashy halfback and captain, Tut Imlay. Tut is one of the boys who is bound to feel the hard hand of competition but he looks fit to hold his own with Marcus, Jones, Brown and Clymer.

Gordon Huber, Jimmy Dixon, Frank Thatcher, Dana Carey, Bert Griffin, Johnny Sargent and Stoop Carlson all look heavier than they were last year and this boy Fitz, is going to be an important person around the center of the line.

True Facts Of Richmond Keys Sunday Battle

Why were the Richmond Keys so strangely silent yesterday?

This question was rife at the carmen's favorite hangout, the Key Cigar store, and the Key Lunch room, all day yesterday.

It was finally gleaned after a great deal of hard labor on the part of all concerned, that Tex Brown had lost another ball game.

Worse and more of it. The fans are getting used to seeing the Keys get walloped all over the lot, but not to the tune of 13 to 0, Sunday's score.

Still worse. Who ever heard of the Herman Athletic club, according to reports it is an Oakland outfit. The game was played at a park at Fifteenth and Telegraph avenue, Oakland.

Skinney Nemis, alleged veteran twirler for the Keys, twirled his arm off in the game, but without result. Don O'Loan caught. That is he caught all that was not hit. Without fail, almost, the fielders muffed every thing that came their way.

Will wonders never cease? That is another question preying on the minds of the fans and friends of the team.

Tex Brown himself turned traitor and umpired the game, and still the Keys couldn't win. Odds are not twenty to one that Tex will ever repeat. His life wasn't worth a

Miss Eleanor Garatti Swims for San Rafael

TWENTY-FIVE YARD COURSE CAREFULLY SURVEYED AND MEASURED SO THAT ANY RECORDS BROKEN AT MEET MAY BE CONSIDERED OFFICIAL

The eyes of all swimmers will focus on Monte Rio this coming week-end with the holding of the first Pacific Association outdoor swimming championships as a feature of the Russian River water carnival next Sunday afternoon. The P. A. championships awarded Monte Rio are 50 and 220 yards free style. These two races will have considerable bearing on the club standing in championships and will be watched with keen interest by the mermaids of the local A. A. U. association.

ELEANOR BEARS BRUNT

Once again Eleanor Garatti, San Rafael's super-star, will bear the brunt of the work for her club. Last Sunday she brought the colors of the San Rafael club a few points nearer the flying Neptune Beach team by winning the backstroke at Idora. Neptune, however, countered with second and third by Adrienne Gibson and Hilda Curtis, so this was in part pulled.

25-YARD COURSE

But two victories by Miss Garatti at Monte Rio next Sunday will bring the point total of the San Rafael organization to 20— which will indicate that there is a bare chance for the Marin County organization to catch the Alameda team before the season is completed.

The races at Monte Rio will be held over a specially built 25 yard course in front of Sandy Beach. This course will be at right angles to the current of the Russian River. It will be carefully surveyed and measured, so if any records are established they will probably be officially considered.

There will be a big entry list in the Monte Rio meet. From Neptune beach will be sent Hilda Curtis, Geneva Whitely, Derrile Chisholm, Adrienne Gibson, and Bernice Phelan. San Rafael will have Ann Vierre, Ann Mair, and possibly their new star—Elizabeth Shapley, besides Eleanor Garatti. Fleishacker will send Helen Zabriski, Dot Ryan, Tommy Yearling, and Phyllis Myatt. Others who are expected to enter are Edna Williams of Lodi, and Zella Johnson, of Rio Nido.

Canoe races, diving and other aquatic events will complete a big program Sunday.

Modern Woodmen Lose To Y. M. I.

Playing loose ball and laboring under an off-day the Modern Woodmen ball club took a walloping from the Y. M. I. of Oakland by a score of 13 to 4. The locals just couldn't get started during the early part of the game, and before they got under way it was too late. The game was played in Oakland on Sunday.

This defeat cuts down the Woodmen average quite a bit as it means 5 games lost out of 12 played.

The Richmond aggregation entered the field Sunday as follows:

Matteri, ss; Chaves, cf; Gillan, 3rd; Muth, 1st; Johnson c; Ming Jr; Geo. Mino 2nd; Donaworth rf; Weckesser p; and Redding p.

plugged nickel for most of the battle and immediately thereafter.

And is was justly so. The umpiring was undoubtedly rotten. Nothing was a strike in the mind of Tex unless the batter swung his stick. That is as far as the Athletics were concerned. The Keys had strikes called on them no matter what happened.

Therefore it was not surprising that Tex was not to be seen around the cigar store or lunch counter yesterday.

DAVIES, PITCHER BOUGHT BY GIANTS, ALLOWS ONLY ONE TALLY IN 54 INNINGS

(Lloyd Chick) Davies, star pitcher of the New Haven team of the Eastern League, has been purchased by the New York National league club for $12,000. During the three weeks before the deal was announced Davies had broken Eastern League pitching records and possibly has set a new record for organized baseball. With his shutout victory over Hartford, his eleventh shutout this season, Davies had pitched 54 innings with only one run being made against him, and had collected a string of 17 games won.

CHICAGO, Aug. 17.—Rogers Hornsby of St. Louis Cardinals is pressing on the trail of Babe Ruth when the home-king ran up 59 homers in 1921. At this stage Ruth had swatted 44 homers. Rogers ran his total to 33, or eleven behind Ruth's record, during the past week.

HALF MILLION TROUT PLANTED IN YOSEMITE

YOSEMITE NATIONAL PARK, Aug. 17.—Another batch of half a million baby trout will arrive in Yosemite National Park this week, to be planted in the high country rivers, lakes and streams. This shipment, from the State fish hatcheries, brings the total planting of trout in Yosemite this summer to a million or more little fish.

Fish experts say that these trout will be about eight inches long by next summer. Rains and hail storms in the high country all summer have kept the water higher than usual in the Yosemite streams, with the result that there is plenty of food for all of the baby trout which have been planted this summer.

Streams and lakes along the Tioga Road have been the favorite fishing grounds for trout fans during the past week or ten days. The thing that appeals to most anglers is they can get to this high country easily by machine and from Tuolumne Meadows can reach an assortment of fishing streams and lakes by short hikes.

Another fishing stream that is giving up plenty of trout is the Illi-louette Creek, just above Vernal and Nevada Falls. The easiest way to reach the best pools in this stream is from Glacier Point Hotel, to which fishermen can drive in machines or go by stage. From there it is but half an hour walk to Illi-louette Creek.

DOCTORS BAILED IN BIG STOCK SWINDLE

Fake Ford Motor Company Stocks
Peddled by Concern at Profit
Of 100 Per Cent—Sale by Mail

SACRAMENTO, Aug. 17.—California doctors are on the "sucker" list of an ingenious gang of swindlers with headquarters in the east. Edwin H. Daugherty, state commissioner of corporations, said today, "Unable" he added, "to obtain an official cloak under which to hide while peddling its wares, the band is resorting to the use of the mails."

HOW THEY DO IT
The gang's method of operating is to buy shares of the Ford Motor company of Canada, for which $450 a share, or thereabouts, is paid. Each share is then divided into 100 parts. Then some prettily illustrated documents are printed, labeled "Banker's Shares." These are offered at $10 per banker's share to anyone who will bite. It means about 100 per cent profit to the promoter of the scheme, and a feeling of disappointment to the purchaser.

PHYSICIANS BAILED
California physicians are receiving by mail what is called a "Special Privilege Subscription Blank," which permits them to buy not more than 50 shares each of banker's shares, or $500 worth. The privilege to buy at the $10 rate is given because the prospect own an automobile, according to the literature. The promoters behind the offer are believed to be indiscriminate as physicians have received there offers who do not own cars.

FAKE FORD BACKING
The impression is given that Henry Ford is behind the proposition, but the Ford company has repeatedly declared that it has no interest in the plan and does not recommend the purchase of these banker's shares.

COMPANY HISTORY
At the office of the Corporation department it was stated that numerous requests had been received from physicians as to the soundness of the proposition. The information is given in response to these inquiries that the scheme started in New York where those behind it were enjoined from transacting business; that it met with discouragement in other states, and that a proposal to try it in California met with a flat "nothing doing."

LEAVE IT ALONE
The best advice that the department can give is to throw these offers into the waste paper basket.

"BULLDOG" JOE LETS GO HOLD

No Claims to Harbor Rights Left
Fisherman After Law Is Quoted

Work in the Richmond inner harbor may now go ahead without interference as far as "Bulldog" Joe Schmidt is concerned.

Joe has evacuated his stronghold on the harbor after he learned that he had no claims whatever. He had been living on the right of way of Richmond avenue.

Considerable difficulty has been encountered by the War Department and the City of Richmond, as Schmidt had refused to move. The San Francisco bridge company built a levy in front of the "squatter's" house to keep him from drowning and went ahead with their work.

City Attorney D. J. Hall told the bridge company that Schmidt had no shadow of a claim. After hearing the facts the bridge company made Joe a handsome cash present and expressed regret that he would have to get out.

Asks Damages After Wreck

Suit has been brought in Justice court by Mrs. Mattie Bonner, through her attorney Will S. Robinson, for $299.99 damages against F. A. Merz and R. H. Downer.

The suit is an outgrowth of an accident on May 29, in which the machine in which the plaintiff was riding, was struck by an light truck owned by the defendants and driven by an unidentified person, named in the complaint as Jack Doe. The accident occurred at Fifth and Cutting.

Mrs. Bonner alleges that injuries were sustained that required hospital attention. She also claimed that negligence on the part of the driver was responsible for the accident.

Contest Brings Out Unique Name for Cafe

"Speedy and Spud's Radio Lunch" is the new name for the former Northern restaurant, 1321 Macdonald avenue.

That was the name chosen by the new proprietors, Mrs. B. Alexander and Mrs. E. Robinson, after 41 names had been submitted in a contest conducted last week. The winning name was announced yesterday.

The author of the successful sobriquet is Eberhard Forwick, of the Union Butcher shop. The names "Speedy" and "Spud's" refer to the two partners. "Radio" refers to the music furnished by radio to flavor the meals.

What My Neighbor Says

Is of interest to Richmond folks. When one has had the misfortune to suffer from headache, dizziness, urinary disorders and other kidney ills—and has found relief from all this sickness and suffering, that person's advice is of untold value to friends and neighbors. The following case is only one of the many thousands, but it is that of a Richmond resident. Who could ask for a better example?

Mrs. G. Schiltz, 1309 Bissell avenue, says: "I suffered from the effects of kidney trouble. I had a constant ache in my back and when I was hanging up clothes, sharp pains caught me and nearly doubled me up. I awoke mornings feeling more tired than when I went to bed. I suffered from pains in my head and dizzy spells. Doan's Pills gave me relief and helped me in every way."

FOUR YEARS LATER, Mrs. Schiltz said: "My faith in Doan's is as strong as ever. I still use them when my kidneys trouble me and they never fail to do me good."

Mrs. Schiltz is only one of many Richmond people who have gratefully endorsed Doan's Pills. If your back aches—if your kidneys bother you, don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—ask distinctly for DOAN'S PILLS, the same that Mrs. Schiltz had—the remedy backed by home testimony. 60 cents at all dealers. Now Another Crime Is Laid to Bedbugs

(By Universal Service)
SACRAMENTO, Aug. 17.—Many an unpleasant evening has been traced directly to bedbugs, but it remained for Edward Lee to file a new indictment against the insects when he charged them with not only robbing him of his sleep but also of his wife.

Suing in superior court here today, Lee told how a multitude of bedbugs had invaded the family domicile one evening. Lee expressed his conviction that there were bedbugs in the bed. His wife replied that there were not. The controversy deepened when he urged his wife to give more time to keeping house and less to reading serials.

With a butcher knife in her hand she forced him to quit the bed and flee from the house.

WAITERS TO BE SUPPLANTED BY FEMININE HELP

Buffet Lunch Opened at Palace
Hotel in Lieu of Regular Service

PATRONS ARE ACQUIESCENT

"Business as Usual" Claimed At Both Hotels During Dinner Hour

(By Universal Service)

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 17.—San Francisco's most exclusive waiters at the Palace and St. Francis Hotels doffed their linen coats and immaculate white aprons at the crucial hour of 11:45 yesterday morning and walked out. They left in their wake juicy roast beefs, tender turkeys, substantial tips and appetites of the city's elite.

ALL IS QUIET.
No disturbance, other than sighs of resignation by the waiting hundreds, marked the sudden disappearance of the attaches of the Palm Court and Grill at the Palace and the Garden, Fable and Mural rooms at the St. Francis.

BUSINESS RESUMED
The buffet lunch was inaugurated at the Palace with the guests good naturedly carrying their own trays before cooks who moved their kitchens to the outer court. Cafeteria style was the mode yesterday of the city's leading bankers, brokers and civic leaders. Some departed but not many.

Ed Rainey secretary to the Mayor, Joseph Strauss, designer of the Golden Gate bridge, Milton H. Faberg, Judge Frank H. Kerrigan, William H. McCarthy, Dr. Charles Strub, John J. Cuddy, Charles T. Hutchinson, and numerous others gave an exceptional insight into their ability to carry a tray in one hand and a napkin in the other.

BUSINESS AS USUAL.
"Business as usual" was the claim of both the Palace and the St. Francis hotels at the dinner hour. The Palace had recruited an emergency staff of waiters, including several women and, according to the management, more women will be added to the force of waiters as rapidly as possible.

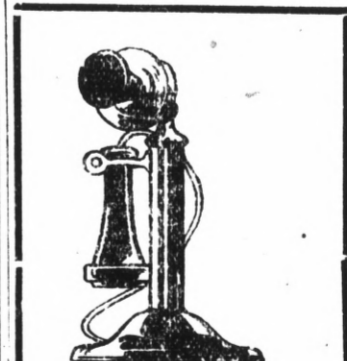

The St. Francis transferred its regular force of feminine waiters from the grill to the main dining rooms at dinner. Hotelmen predicted that the result of the strike would be to bring in women waiters as a permanent force at the large hotels.

"Next Year I'll Take A Real Vacation"

Maybe you are one of those who have made this pledge, but have not worked out a way to keep it when the time comes.

You may have had a good time this year, but perhaps next season would like to go farther away, or have the money to provide greater enjoyment at a place you have already visited.

Start now, by adding a small amount to your regular Mercantile Savings Account. It's surprising how easy it is to save more money when you have the proper incentive. When next season comes along you will have enough to go to the places you like and do the things you desire.
